Participation fee

Donation is base of participation in the course. We do not commend an amount of donation for livelihood, travel-costs and food costs, so that everyone can participate in the course. The amount of voluntary donation depends on the financial potential of the participant. That follows the Buddhist tradition, which says the value of the Buddhist doctrine can't be balanced with money. Teacher and organizer need money for their own livelihood and for the costs of the course. Donation and generosity are parts of the spiritual practice. Donation and generosity helps to conserve the Buddhist doctrine and enables everyone to come in contact with.

In the monastery a single room with shower and WC costs 25 € / Night and person. You have to pay the room cash. The money will be encashed, when the rooms are distributed.

DANA

„Dana“ means gift and generosity.

It encompasses the support of those who unselfishly and openly give their time and knowledge to teach the path of calm, insight and compassionate action.

Dana is a way of thanksgiving: a spontaneous grateful offering which stems from the appreciation of that which was received.

Such generostiy cannot be forced. It simply opens when the tree of mindfulness blossoms and finally bears fruit.

Responsibility

Teachers, the Dhammacari Vipassana-Meditationszentrum gem. e. V. and the benedictine-monastery Scheyern are not responsible for physical and mental damages, which can occur during the course

Tradition

In the course Vipassan ā-meditation will be practiced in tradition of venerable Ajahn Tong Sirimangalo (Phra Dhammangalajarn). Venerable Ajahn Tong is abbot of the monastery "Wat Phra Dhatu Sri Chomtong" in Thailand and is an eminently respectable meditation-teacher. This meditation-technique bases on the tradition of Buddha and is practiced today in monasteries in Thailand. It is an intensive form of the MahasiSayadaw-tradition. The participants will practice attention and so watch the four basics of attention (Body, feelings, intellect and the objects of the intellect) during sitting- and walking-meditation and the daily activities. Because participants will learn by their own experience and their own closely watching it is not necessary to be religious.

In individuell daily interviews (Report) the teacher will care for you and give you exercises.

Buddha praise the benefit of meditation in Satipatthana-Sutta (M 10):

In the Satipatthana-Sutta (M 10) Lord Buddha praised the benefit of this training: „This path which everyone must walk alone and for himself leads to the purification of beings, to overcome sorrow and grief, to the disappearance of pain and suffering, to attain the right path, to experience Nibbana. It is named the Fourfold Awakening of Mindfulness.“

Teachers

Most Ven. Ajahn Tong Sirimangalo (Phra Prom Mongkol Vi)

94 years old venerable Ajahn Tong (.Ajahn' means teacher) is abbot of the monastery 'Wat Phra Dhatu Sri Chomtong' and an eminently respectable meditation-teacher. He campaigned heavily for distribution of Buddhism. Since his childhood he is living in monasteries in the north of Thailand. He is practicing and teaching vipassana for more than 60 years. Since the 80th he leads courses in Europe and America assisted by Thanat und Kathrin Chindaporn. His wisdom, his tolerance and his labour for accomodation between religions provides worldwide respect for him.

Thanat Chindaporn

The 77 years old humorous Meditation teacher is living with Ajahn Tong since more than 25 years. In that time Thanat built up the international meditation centre for foreigners in Wat Chomtong (Chiangmai). Furthermore he educated meditation teachers and led meditation courses inside and outside of Thailand. In recognition of his tireless labour for dissemination of vipassana meditation he got an award by the government of Thailand. Thanat is speaking Chinese, Thai and English. Participants not speaking English will get a translation of the instructions, questions and answers.

Kathryn J. Chindaporn

is a student and teacher of Vipassana for over 30 years, having taught meditation in Thailand and her birthplace Washington State, as well as conducting courses on the West Coast, in Mexico, Puerto Rico, Hawaii, Europe, Israel and India since 1988. In 2000, Kathryn received the Benefactor of Buddhism Award of Chiangmai Province and the Sema Dhammacakka (Golden Pillar of Dhamma Award) in Recognition of International Dissemination of Buddhism, the latter conferred by HRH Princess Maha Chakri Sirindhorn of Thailand.

Hildegard Huber

Hildegard Huber has practiced vipassana meditation for many years and is a learner of venerable Ajahn Tong. Since 1993 she organized meditation courses in Europe. In 1998 Ajahn Tong authorized her to teach vipassana meditation. Since 2004 Hildegard has directed her life to Dhamma. After a heavy disease and an intensive informative convalescence there was a possibility to act as a meditation teacher. So the Dhammacari vipassana-meditation centre build up, which she is leading. There Hildegard is living and teaching since 2006. Because she has much meditation practice, she is able to path her knowledge of the Buddhist doctrine to us. The course can be done in English.
